

Personal Injury Insurance

Accidental injury insurance covers non-disease-related external, sudden accidents by offering death and disability benefits, often bundled with riders for actual medical expenses, daily hospitalization, fractures, and severe burns; it effectively relieves economic burdens for individuals and families, serving as a crucial supplement to build complete risk protection and enhance financial security.

Coverage:

- Personal accident insurance packages typically include accidental death benefit and disability benefit as core coverage, along with additional benefits such as reimbursement of actual medical expenses, daily hospitalization allowance, and fracture outpatient medical benefit. Some packages also offer additional protection such as major burn injury benefit and ambulance fee coverage.

Accidental Injury Caused by Public Transportation Endorsement

- Provides accidental death, disability, or funeral expense benefit when the insured suffers an accident while travelling on public transportation.

Overseas Accidental Injury Endorsement

- Provides additional accidental death, disability, or funeral expense benefit when the insured suffers an accident while overseas.

This information is for reference only;
all rights and benefits shall be governed by the Chinese version of the Company's insurance contract.